Description: Someone (not us, random person who told us this story) found a cat then drove away with it and let it out near our house (itâ€™s a long story), but we realized the cat was a house cat and might not survive the night (and might also be microchipped), so we took it in for the night. The cat is friendly, fully declawed, and young (maybe 6months - 1 year). The cat is black and white and we will take it to the vet to see if it is microchipped. It loved fancy feast and we will keep it fed and warm. Anyone missing a cat?
